TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 28, 1909

"The man who, expending his energies wholly on private affairs, refuses to take trouble about public affairs, pluming himself on his wisdom in minding his own business, is blind to the fact that his own business is made possible only by the maintenance of a healthy social state, and that he loses all around by defective governmental arrangements. When there are many like-minded with himself—where, as a consequence, offices come to be filled by political adventurers—where bribery vitiates the administration of law and makes fraudulent state transactions habitual; heavy penalties fall on the community at large, and, among others, on those who have thus done everything for self and nothing for society. Their investments are insecure; recovery of their debts is difficult, and even their lives are less safe than they would otherwise have been.—Herbert Spencer.

When they get to trading in the cheaper stocks, business will be brisk again.

In what did they suppose the President of the United States would clothe himself on entering a mine?

On to Pearl Harbor. Let the good work proceed and more speedily bring Pearl Harbor closer to Honolulu.

Honolulu is a good town, and the men of the navy are good men. Everybody is having a good time. Why try to make it out otherwise?

When Claudius shines at the head of the Governor's reorganized clerical force that top hat should be displaced by a crown of burnished gold.

While so many nations are represented in the harbor, Honolulu should have a care that it proves itself equally pleased to entertain all of them.

Any person who comes within hailing distance of Kilauea and fails to visit the fiery pit may put down in his notebook, "I missed the opportunity of a lifetime."

What good does it do for the earthquake expert to tell us that quakes should be expected the next three days? Is everyone expected to live in tents on his say-so?

The aviator whose flying machine turned a complete somersault without doing him injury has no doubt started more than one circus man making plans for next season's thrill.

Mosquitoes carry malaria and yellow fever. Flies distribute typhoid fever. While attacking the mosquitoes as an ounce of prevention, why not kill off the flies in order to cure typhoid?

Warships of four foreign nations will soon be in this port as a forerunner of the ships of all nations that will make this port a stopping place as the great future of the Pacific and Honolulu develops.

Judged by their records, the city government of Honolulu will suffer no loss of reputation from a call-down from the company that has been furnishing Honolulu with alleged telephones for ten years or more.

Since when has it been good public policy to bar noisy boys and their sports from public parks? Are these "breathing spots" for the people to be used for the special benefit of the cranky citizens who have forgotten that they were ever young, or that sports ever had a place in their thoughts?

Make no mistake. It is up to the American steamship companies to take care of the Honolulu passengers in first-class style. That is the purpose of the protection given them, and they should "come through" in a manner appropriate to present demands and Honolulu's great future.

Some persons seem to think that the telephone company can plaster this town all over with just what it pleases, stick dangerous irons in the sidewalks and maintain a service that is a by-word for misery, and then when the People step in with a regulation or two this company has the right to demand in imperious tones by what right these curs of humanity presume to say anything about the streets. Presumably the threat to not put in the automatic service is intended to frighten the people. Also presumably the people of Honolulu, having listened to telephone guff for the last fifteen years, are tired of it and would be more than pleased with a result that had the appearance of satisfactory service. That's the way the telephone company will make a winning, and that's the way the new managers can make the people believe there has really been a change.

MAKIKI ATHLETIC GROUNDS.

Why should the Makiki Park be closed to athletic sports?

If memory serves correctly this park was presented to the public as a recreation ground. It has always been used as such, and there is no good reason for changing the rules governing the ground or the precious grass.

Furthermore, the growth of the city makes the recreation ground a topic for more serious consideration than it has hitherto been. The people should stand more firmly for the retention of public grounds for their original purposes. The sportsmen seeking recreation should not be forced out of the town. This is particularly true of the young men and boys against whose bubbling spirits and noise the chief complaint is usually made, but for whose convenience and welfare the grounds are and should be maintained.

The Makiki playgrounds should be a perpetual haven for the people who enjoy athletic sports. It is the last place in town where any "keep off the grass" signs should be found. If trees have been planted so as to interfere with sports, they should be cut down and other trees started where they will give a welcome shade, but not interfere with the play.

MILK ORDINANCE AND POLITICS.

Any milk ordinance that will assist in putting the milk supply of this or any other city on a civilized basis may be reckoned as a step in the right direction.

By civilized basis, we mean regulation that will enforce some of the modern ideas of dairying with which we fear all too many of our milkmen are unfamiliar.

The day was when anyone was supposed to be able to run a farm, and if "anyone" had more than three cows and sold milk to customers he was a dairyman. Knowledge of how to care for his cattle or an understanding of the qualities of milk and its purity were by no means necessary.

On the mainland the situation is very different today. In the city of Honolulu we are running along on the old-time theory that "anyone" can run a dairy, with the exception of ranchers who have "read up" on modern dairying and have voluntarily improved conditions in this very important branch of the city's food supply.

Since these men have already brought their dairy establishments up to a high standard it is quite natural that an ordinance putting milk production and traffic on a modern basis should be looked upon by those running their dairies in the "good old-fashioned way" as an attempt to hinder them and help the rival.

There was a time when the mainland farmers felt the same way about it. But that was before the agricultural colleges and the agricultural experiment stations made of animal husbandry a science and a study in place of an occupation in which main strength and awkwardness were the main supports of industry.

It is easy to understand how some

POOR MILK VS.
BAD WHISKEY

Supervisor Dan Logan is verily a sage of the first water. While on his feet in the council chamber at 9 o'clock last night, making a strenuous fight for the passing of the milk ordinance, a good one occurred to him, and tilting his right hand at a Henry Irving dramatic pose, he declared:

"Secretary Strauss in reviewing the matter, said that unsanitary milk contained more poisonous germs than bad whiskey!"

The other Supervisors roared, the Mayor and his Secretary smiled broadly, while those in the audience let loose. The Supervisor's timely shot may have had something to do with

THE ADVERTISER AND EXPLORER SHACKLETON.

Editor Evening Bulletin:—In this morning's Advertiser there appears an editorial headed "English Ingratitude to Shackleton," in which it is stated that Lieut. Shackleton failed to get the necessary financial backing for his expedition in his own country and that a small group of Americans agreed to make up the deficiency, but they were unable to do so owing to the financial stringency in the United States. Further on in said editorial it states that the British government refused to contribute to the fund, and the explorer was left to meet the debt incurred the best way he could, and the editor of the Advertiser says: "No wonder England is degenerating."

Now, what are the facts of the case? Lieut. Shackleton's expedition was a purely private enterprise, similar to Dr. Cook's to the North Pole. He was a comparatively unknown man before starting on his trip, and yet, notwithstanding this, a few English friends (not Americans, who had nothing to do with the matter from beginning to end) became guarantors to the bank for an overdraft of $100,000, said overdraft to be repaid by July, 1910. On Lieut. Shackleton's return to England the question arose as to how this amount was to be paid to the bank. He expected to be able to repay part of it from the sale of his forthcoming book of travels, but the British government has granted him, UNSOLICITED, $100,000, which is sufficient to meet all the guarantees given by Lieut. Shackleton and his friends for advances. Lieut. Shackleton has expressed his appreciation of this generosity. The total cost of the expedition was between $215,000 and $225,000, of which $50,000 came from the British Dominions of Australia and New Zealand.

In conclusion I will suggest to the editor of the Advertiser that he should keep himself posted on English topics by reading some of the leading English newspapers, and not confine his researches to second-rate American journals, such as the Kansas City Journal and others of that ilk.

is simply a synonymous term used in explanation of the crime of riot and is accompanied by the maximum penalty of five years imprisonment or a fine not in excess of $1000.

When it was seen last night that there was no immediate prospect of reaching an agreement, preparations were made toward securing accommodations for the jurors. No rooms were to be had down town and it was not until the Moana was communicated more certificates of Hawaiian birth to be issued by the executive offices.

REORGANIZATION IN EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

It has been understood that a plan of the reorganization of the clerical department in the executive offices has been favorably considered for some time. In connection with the application of the idea the Governor said this morning that it would evolve the transfer of his office to that occupied by Secretary Mott-Smith, that official now having much of his time taken up by the onerous affairs of the Board of Health, which are just now in a period of transition that requires active executive control. It is believed that a definite announcement in connection with the plan of clerical reorganization will be made within the course of a few days, when the details will have been settled.
